JUNIORS TO GIVE BIBLES TO SCHOOL

Presentation Takes Place Sunday Afternoon at Central Building.

Presentation of Bibles to all Middlesboro school and to those in adjacent territory by the local council of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics will take place at the Central School building Sunday afternoon.

The event will be attended by a program of speaking and perhaps other entertainment plans for which are yet only tentative. Teachers will be present and the Junior Order will give them Bibles for all school rooms in local and adjacent school buildings.

The event will be a fitting one for the Junior Order, as one of the cardinal principles of this organization is the belief in the Bible and the American schools. In this and other states the order has been instrumental in putting Bibles in school houses and in flying the Stars and Stripes over school buildings.

The Bibles will be a great convenience this year as a recent act of the legislature provides that a portion of the Bible be read in school each day.

SAYS STATE HAS A PATCHWORK PLAN OF ROADS

Governor Fields Made Strong Plea for the Bond Issue.

NEED OF SCHOOLS

Governor Explains Merits of the Bond Issue, Answers Arguments of Opponents In Speech.

Declaring that the "Pay-as-you go" plan is no plan but merely a makeshift method which has resulted in a "patchwork road system" in Kentucky for the past 132 years, Governor W. J Fields made a strong appeal for the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue in his address to a large audience at the Manring theatre yesterday afternoon

Business places had closed their doors out of courtesy to the state's chief executive and a large crowd was present. Nearly all the seats were taken and a number of persons were standing. Mrs. D G Hinks, who, with Mrs. W. E Gunn, had gone to Pineville to welcome the governor made the introductory speech. The address of Governor Fields was a clear exposition of the merits of the proposed bond issue.

After explaining briefly the necessity for an overland system of transportation, the speaker spoke of the gains which would accrue to the educational system of the state by the bond issue, $25,000,000 of which will be used for educational, penal and eleemosynary institutions

"Few sections under the shining sun can show more natural wealth than Kentucky," he declared, mentioning the lands, minerals and other sources of wealth "Yet our greatest wealth is our sons and daughters." In this connection he explained that Kentucky ranks eleven from the bottom in education and that, with the exception of one other state, it spends less for education

He spoke of the necessity for adequate penal institutions, saying that the inmates, though convicted criminals, are still human beings, that they came from Kentucky homes. He spoke also of needed improvements at the insane asylum home for the blind and similar institutions.

But it was against the present system of financing roads that the attack of the governor was mainly directed. People of Kentucky have an ancient prejudice against the term, "bond issue," he said, which had its origin in some fake railroad bonds years ago.

"I don't know what we would have done during the World War if the United States government had not raised money by bond issues," he declared. "Farmers, business men, professional men, all of them borrow and find it profitable"

Governor Fields declared emphatically that if the bond issue became a reality there will not be an increase in taxes. The interest for the thirty years during which the money will be borrowed will be paid by the gasoline tax and the revenue from auto license. Roads are now financed almost entirely from this fund, he stated, but the present highway system does not provide for maintenance of roads.

He declared that the improvement contemplated by the bond issue would, for the most part, be permanent, that such work as grading, ditching and culverts would last forever and that resurfacing from time to time will be all that is necessary.

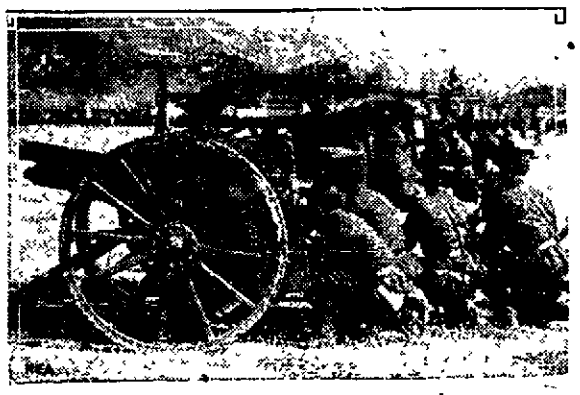
Answering the argument if is not right to pass on to posterity a debt such as will likely result from the bond issue, he stated that it is not fair that the people of today bear the entire expense of road construction, that the permanent improvements to be made during the next few years should be paid for, in part at least, by future generations which uses them.

"On November 4 when you go to the polls be sure to first place your mark on the ballot indicating that you favor the bond issue," he advised.

The governor urged the organization of local boosters for the bond issue in order that speakers may be sent into the outlying districts to educate the people in regard to the matter that they might vote intelligently on the bond issue.

Governor Fields did not discuss partisan politics and his address was equally enjoyed by members of all political parties.

In War-Torn China



China may be out of date in some respects, but military warfare is one occupation that Chinese do not pattern after their ancestors. The picture shows a modern fieldpiece, part of the modern military equipment employed by the forces now beleaguering Shanghai.

LABOR APPROVES KY. BOND ISSUE

Kentucky Federation of Labor Endorses Move for Good Roads, and Schools.

The proposed $75,000,000 bond issue was endorsed by the Kentucky Federation of Labor during the morning session at the Boonesboro Inn

It was recommended that the proposed road construction is done with union labor, so far as possible. Only one dissenting vote to the resolution was heard

The convention has been hearing and approving resolutions all morning and was still engaged in this work at 1 o'clock this afternoon. There was considerable discussion on the resolution condemning "loan shark" practice. A large number of the resolutions condemned practices of non-union establishments in the state.

One resolution unanimously passed disapproving of what was termed an abuse of power in granting injunctions in labor disputes. Another resolution which was passed alleged that efforts are being made by mine operators in this district to destroy the miner's union.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10—At 10 p m tonight rainfall indicated almost without doubt that further firing along the whole front of the Chinese Civil War will be postponed until the skies are cleared.

That it will mean merely a cessation of firing instead of stopping hostilities was indicated by definite reports that both sides in the struggle for possession of this rich port were strengthening their positions and rushing additional troops and ammunition to the front.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA NOT TO GIVE UP FIGHT

Recent Rumors of Dr. Sun's Death Are Unfounded, it Seems.

SUN WAS NOT ILL

General Chen Must Offer Apology for Revolt—Attempt to Murder Dr. Sun in Night. Reported.

Associated Press

CANTON, Cina, Sept —Determination of Dr. Sun Yat-sen to stay with the fight until he has won, was reiterated in an interview granted recently by Dr C. C. Wu commissioner of foreign affairs and son of the late Dr. Wu Ting-fang

"The recent rumors of Dr Sun's death we have not been able to trace," Dr Wu declared "He was not even ill If he were ill we would issue bulletins.

"There is not much in the story about negotiations for peace with Chen Chiung ming. The precedent condition for peace is that General Chen issue a formal apology for his revolt The attempt to murder Dr. Sun in the middle of the night, open rebellion against an established government, actions like these raise a moral issue. That must first be settled by public apology and the rest will be easy. There will be certain arrangements about placing of troops, certain compromises on both sides Probably a northern expedition would be organized, not for the purpose of capturing Peking, but to return to their own provinces the troops of other sections which have been fighting under Dr. Sun's flag.

"Dr. Sun realizes full well that war is hard on the people, even a well conducted war. But he is no more tired of this war than were England and France 'tired' of the war in 1918. He is determined to win.

"The removal of the soldiers to barracks outside the city is not proceeding as rapidly as anticipated, or rather not quite according to schedule; we anticipated that it would be slow."

Dr. Wu, dressed in a long formal Chinese gown, received the interviewer in a big reception room, well supplied with blackwood furniture. Two cups of tea, Chinese style, were unobtrusively served, but the commissioner did not even bother to take a sip of his. One was somehow made to realize that he was a busy man, though there was never a hint of this in the way he spoke. His Oxford English and his conversational power are delightful. It was rather in the quiet composure of his manner as he politely waited for the interviewer to ask him another question.

Caverly Says Imprisonment Most Severe Penalty.

TO BE NO APPEAL

Darrow Says Life Imprisonment Most Defense Hoped For—Boys Not Greatly Affected.

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Life imprisonment was the punishment fixed today, by Judge John R. Caverly upon Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed kidnappers and slayers of fourteen year old Robert Franks.

This was a complete victroy for the defense. Youth was the controlling factor in the judge's decision. He said no minor had ever been sentenced to death in Illinois on the plea of guilty. He said such action was contrary to the tendency of criminal law.

Not a muscle moved on Leopold's face when he heard the decision. Loeb rapidly blinked his eyelids, gulped almost unnoticeably, and slightly contracted his lips. Not a portion of their bodies moved any more.

The court passed separate sentences on the murder and the kidnapping, naming life imprisonment for the murder and imprisonment for ninetynine years on the kidnaping ridictment.

"It would have been the path of least resistance to impose the extreme penalty," said the 'gray-haired judge in his decision. "In choosing imprisonment instead of death the court was moved chiefly by the age of the defendants. The boys are eighteen and nineteen years of age," the judge added that while life imprisonment may not strike the public imagination as forcibly as would hanging, yet to offenders particularly of the type they are the prolonged suffering of years of confinement may well be a severe form of retribution and expiation."

Robert Crowe, state's attorney, in a formal statement said: "I still believe the death penalty is the only penalty feared by the murderers."

"It was all we could have asked for", said Clarence Darrow, defense counsel chief, "there will be no appeal."

Leopold's father sat weeping and offered no comment. Edwin Gresham, uncle of the child victim, the only member of the Franks' family present, refused to comment but shook his head when asked for the family's acceptance of the sentence.

Later Leopold, Sr., said he never attempt to obtain his son's release. An immense crowd gathered outside the court building but no untoward incident marred the proceedings. Court adjourned ten minutes after convening.

BR. CHARLES AND THE AMERICAN FARMER

"Brother" Charles Bryan says that the republican party is responsible for striking a blow at agriculture. This is about as accurate as some other statements that have carried the Bryan mint mark in the past twenty-eight years.

Mr. Bryan is evidently of short memory or endowed with unlimited sophistry—very probably the latter. If his memory was better no doubt he could have recalled that after the passage of the Underwood tariff law in 1913, imports into the United States began to increase to such a rapid extent that by July 1914, the balance of trade was running strongly against the United States. By winter the soup houses were running in every large city like in the good old free trade days of Cleveland, hundreds of thousands were out of employment and with good crops throughout the nation, the country was confronted with want in the cities and low prices for products of the farm.

In December 1914, the New York World, now one of the leading Davis-Bryan exponents said:

"Long bread lines in this city grow longer. Municipal lodgings and mission houses are filled to the door each night. Efforts to find work for the unemployed are still behind the increasing army of the jobless."

In December 1914, there were 2,000,000 idle workers in the United States and the one and only cause was the low tariff that permitted the free trade influx of foreign products, that shut down our own mills and mines and prostrated our agricultural industry.

Br. Charles also knows that in the winter of 1919-20 that the price of corn fell from $1.53 in July 1919 to 73 cents in December of that year. This was in the closing days of the noted Wilson administration when everyone danced and no one ever thought of paying the piper. The price of steers tumbled off nearly four cents a pound. Wheat went off approximately a dollar a bushel. Hog prices fell nearly five cents per pound. This was when the American farmer was paying the highest prices in history for the manufactured products he used in producing crops. This was in the latter days of Mr. Wilson's regime—the dynasty of friendly regard for the American farmer.

Also it might be noted that the last democratic administration fixed the price of northwestern wheat and wool allowed other articles that the farmer purchased to go to less sky limit. Yes indeed Br. Charles the last democratic administration was a kindly father to the American farmer.

Daniel Webster observed a hundred years ago that "when agriculture begins other arts follow." We can have no true prosperity in America until the agricultural industry is on a safe foundation. It will not be saved through blows or free trade. The greatest prosperity of the American workingman and manufacturer goes hand in hand with the American farmer—the American farmer has prospered under republican rule as has the American workingman and neither will be fooled by the far fetched statements of Mr. Bryan.

The height of folly is looking to see if Mars is inhabited.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

(By Harry B. Hunt)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. Two tests of how the political wind is blowing have greatly heartened the LaFollette-Wheeler contingent.

The first test was the result in the Wisconsin state primaries, where Gov. John M. Blaine, bearing LaFollette's endorsement, received a vote substantially larger than the combined vote for his two rivals, and LaFollette-endorsed candidates for state office were swept across by crushing majorities all along the line.

This, however, despite claims by anti-LaFollette workers in the state, was not unexpected. A much more significant test, it is held here was that of a straw vote taken on board the Shipping Board liner George Washington, en route from Europe the last week in August.

To relieve the tedium of the days at sea, a "presidential campaign" was pulled off in which the 531 passengers in the first, second and third class cabins participated.

Three days of intensive campaigning preceded the balloting. Rep. John D. Fredericks of California was manager and chief spokesman for Coolidge and the G. O. P.

Arthur Mullberger of Wisconsin, former U. S. district attorney, had charge of the Davis Democratic campaign.

Herman Grossman, a New York proletarian, upheld the cause of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket.

The voting was by secret ballot, at the same hour in the three different cabins. The result was:

Coolidge and Dawes, 342.
Davis and Bryan, 110
La Follette and Wheeler, 82.

On shipboard this was at once acclaimed as a "sea-slide" for the G. O. P. "Nothing to it," the Republican boosters aboard declared. Three to one as against Davis and four to one over La Follette.

Certainly that is what it appears on the surface. But the La Follette analysists look under the surface and find cause for cheer.

"What proportion of the workers of America," they ask, spend their vacations touring Europe?"

What percentage of the passengers aboard a great liner returning from Europe would come from the great mass of wage earners and middle-class salaried folks to whom the La Follette candidacy might be expected to appeal. Certainly not 25 per cent!

"In the main such tarvelers come from the groups which grow rich on the very special privileges that La Follette assails.

"If La Follette can get 82 votes from among a shipload of returning European tourists, he'll run like a house afire among the stay-at-homes."

Taking up the vote in more detail, the LaFollette dopesters are more than ever certain they have the right slant on its significance.

Of the 290 first cabin passengers for instance, only 17 were for the Wisconsin Independent, 61 were for Davis and 212 for Coolidge.

Among the 202 second cabin passengers, less representative of big business and great wealth, Coolidge lead was not so great and La Follette's vote actually exceeded that of Davis, the vote being: Coolidge 116, Davis 41, La Follette 45.

In the third cabin group the La-Follette-Wheeler ticket ran away from both old line opponents, the 42 votes in this class giving 20 votes to La Follette as against 14 for Coolidge and eight for Davis.

These third cabin travelers, the Independent boosters claim, are more nearly representative of the average American voters. If anything they would be less strongly Independent than the average. Therefore the cheer!

8% of the Soft Coal Mined in the United States

Or a total of over a half million cars, was transported during 1923 by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. With 5,038 miles of track, as compared to a total of 251,175 miles of track in the United States, this figure of 2% of the total trackage, as against 8% of the total amount of coal mined, demonstrates the importance of the L. & N. as a coal-carrying Road.

From the mines in Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee, Virginia and Alabama, this road transports this immense tonnage of "black diamonds"; bringing prosperity to the communities in which the coal is produced, and adding to the comfort and prosperity of the sections in which it is consumed.

Taking things from where they are plentiful to where they are scarce, to the financial and social benefit of both the shipping and receiving communities, is one of the great tasks which the American railroads are capably performing. Don't hamper them by hurtful legislation.

BUILDING
That's Permanent!

What would you think if the teachers in your schools would only half teach your child? You want the teacher to begin at the bottom and build your child's education for permanence. Building a home or a building of any kind, the same principle should be used.

Use the best materials, have the best workmen, and get the best service that you possibly can, and when you see a place that needs repairs don't put it off, but get right at it and you will save money in the long run.

Look over your roof—it may leak this winter. Does your house need painting? Think over these things and then come in and talk it over with us. We can help you with your building problems.

FEW CHANGES IN BOOKS OF SCHOOL MADE

Contract Expired Recently for Text Books.

Supt. Bradner Explains Specific Instances of Changes — Some Pupils Need Few Books.

By law, the contract for text books which have been in use in our schools, expired on June 30th, 1924, and it was necessary for the Board of Education to make an adoption of text books for the next five years.

A great deal of care has been exercised, and comparatively few changes have been made, and arrangements have been made to carry on the work with the old books until they have been finished. The child has been asked to buy one of the new adoptions only in such grades as he or she would have been required to have purchased a new set of books, regardless of what books were used. To illustrate, Aldine Language which has been used in grades three and four, has been displaced by Lessons in English Lower grades The child who is in grades 3 A, 4-B, and 4 A, will continue the use of the Aldine Language, and the only child who will buy the Lessons in English Lower grades, is the child in 3-B. This child, from the fact that he had no language in the 2nd grade, would have been compelled to have bought a new language book, and it so happens in this particular case that he will pay for lessons in English grades, 48 cents, whereas if he were obliged to buy Aldine First Language Book, it would have cost him 79 cents, and we think the new book is preferable to the old. This same policy has been followed in all cases in regard to books which have been changed.

Parents will note that children in grades 1-A, 2 A, 3-A, 4 A, and 5-A, will be required to buy practically no books this year. In no one of these grades will they be required to buy more than one book, and in grade six, the majority of the books were used in the fifth grade last year, and grade eight, only two new books required others are carried from the seventh grade and completed in the eighth.

A list of books is printed in today's Daily News, and it will be advisable for as many as possible to purchase these books before school opens, in order to save the great rush on the first day of school.
